

Kingston Area Assessments and Accommodations

(updated 2025-03-03)

A) Assessments for post-secondary students

If you are a post secondary student, or accepted to be one, you may be able to get an assessment done at the RARC (Regional Assessment and Resource Centre, located at Queen's University, but covers all of southeastern Ontario). This could be free or low cost depending on your eligibility for OSAP (Ontario Student Assistance Program). The testing may need to be arranged through the post-secondary institution you are enrolled in.

See: <https://www.queensu.ca/rarc/assessments/rarc>

B) Academic Upgrading with accommodations

If you are looking for academic upgrading courses, St. Lawrence College offers ones that are free and let you use accommodations as required.

C) Psychologists in Kingston who do assessment for learning disabilities

These independent psychologists listed below are some who do psycho-educational assessments in the Kingston area. LDAK is not able to endorse any in particular, and they are not in any particular order.

These assessments can be quite costly (usually more than $2,500), but some may be covered by a work health insurance policy if you are working now and have one, or perhaps are covered by your parents work insurance. (SEE LIST ON NEXT PAGE.)

D) Psychologists in Ottawa area who do assessment for learning disabilities
